2024 INDY SUMMER CAMP GUIDE

The weather outside is frightful, and summer camp sounds pretty darn delightful right now. It's not too early to start thinking about what your kids will be doing when they're out of school in the warmer months while you still have work. In our 2024 Summer Camp Guide this year, we have plenty of options to keep them energized, engaged, learning, and getting creative.

Want your kids to be active in the summer? Send them to dance, fencing, horseback riding, or science-and-nature summer camp. Want them to practice the arts or learn a new skill? There are cooking, visual and performing arts, and music camps available, too. Whatever your child's interests, and whatever summer camp your family chooses, one thing is certain: the memories kids make while learning, playing, and adventuring at camp stay with them for a lifetime.

BLUE SKIES OF MAPLEVIEW LLC SUMMER HORSE DAY CAMP

"Oh my goodness, my daughter had the best day today. She loved every bit of it by becoming part of the herd, brushing and feeding, riding bareback and realizing how powerful communication is between her body and the horses. She loved how y'all talked about the horses and how you treat them, and wow, she is just one happy camper!"

FAULTY TOWERS

As Millennia, owner of Durham's JFK Towers, is cited by HUD for financial mismanagement, residents continue to complain about safety, management, and upkeep at the low-income, elderly living facility.

By Cy Neff, p. 5
